Wake Up Your Immune System

It's pretty common place today to see people at the grocery store using the anti-bacterial wipes to clean the handle of the grocery cart or sitting down at a restaurant before a meal and using the anti-bacterial hand gel to disinfect our hands. But what about the germs and toxins that make it into our bodies? Pushing the buttons on the ATM machine or elevator, pumping gas, breathing the recycled air on an airplane, riding an escalator, to name a few, are all ways viruses, bacteria and toxins can enter our bodies and wreak havoc on our body's defenses.

The immune system is our body's armor against these invaders. However, it seems every day scientists discover hundreds of germs, bacteria, chemicals and pollutants that we come in contact with in our daily activities that contribute to, according to experts, a growing number of health threats and concerns. Continual exposures to these viruses, pollutants, bacteria and toxins may cause the body's defenses to be defenseless.

We need to minimize our exposure or help our body battle this burden.

Related Research

It is therapeutically best to utilize a blend of several mushroom species, because "the whole is greater than the sum of its parts." For one thing, it is easier for pathogens in your body to adapt and become resistant to one mushroom than to several. Secondly, each mushroom species has a unique arsenal of anti-infective and immunomodulating agents. These special agents include: Polysaccharides, Glycoproteins, Ergosterols and Triterpenoids. You might have heard the term "beta glucans." The agents listed above are precursors to the more complex compounds beta glucans. It is the synergism between ALL of these elements that makes mushrooms so medicinally powerful when consumed as a whole food—mycelium included. Because mushrooms have such powerful immune-boosting effects, it isn't surprising that some have great potential for battling cancer. Mushrooms with anti-tumor activity appear to increase the number and activity of killer T and natural killer (NK) lymphocytes, with no toxicity to healthy cells.
